DELEGATES ELECTED.

The Executive Committee of the Conservative party appointed Saturday last as the day for the election of delegates to the proposed Conservative Convention. In selecting that day, and requiring that the citizens of the several wards and districts should select delegates to the Convention, the committee sought to give them plenty of time to look about for available men, and to prevent the "stiffening" process which usually prevails when wards and districts vote on different days. So far as reported, the result is all that could have been expected or desired. In nearly all the wards of the city the meetings were attended by the best men. The result is consequently disheartening to those who had cut and dried programmes, and who expected, as in times past, to send certain men, and no others, to the Convention. Merchants, lawyers, business men, property-owners, mechanics and laboring men, encouraged by the new order of things induced by the decisions of the Supreme Court and liberal policy advocated by Governor SENTER, were out in large numbers, not merely as lookers on, but as participants warmly, and as the result, the Convention will be a body of men, and not a collection of the laboring preliminary to their enfranchisement. The State on the verge of bankruptcy, and our county and city financially weak, it is about time that they recognize their public duties and are prepared to perform them. They were not quite successful in all the wards, yet sufficiently so to encourage them to continue, as we hope they will, on all occasions in the future. In the lists before us we recognize the names of many good and intelligent citizens, who will have weight in the Convention and be able to much by the selection of eligible candidates for the Legislature, to secure the great and lasting benefit of the enfranchisement of the white people of Tennessee. The result of the ward and district meetings taken as a whole is very encouraging. We hope for a harmonious Convention and for nominations that will represent the ability, the worth and the responsibility of the community.

A PARAGRAPH HAS BEEN GOING THE ROUNDS OF THE PRESS, telegraphed from Montreal, upon what was presumed to be good authority, to the effect that ex-President DAVIS was in poor health and was not expected to survive the summer. We are warranted by a warm personal friend of Mr. DAVIS in contradicting this statement, and in assuring the friends of the great statesman that he is enjoying (for one so broken by care and anxiety) very good health and that he expects to leave London in the fall on a visit, (perhaps to stay) to his old home in Mississippi. Mrs. DAVIS and one of her children have been ill, occasioning some anxiety to Mr. DAVIS, a fact that no doubt has something to do with the rumor. In this connection, we make room for the following from a London paper, which would seem to confirm the information above. It says: "One fancies it is not very much known that Mr. JEFFERSON DAVIS, the ex-President of the Confederate States of America, is living in London, and is, moreover, an object of great attraction to the fashionable world. One hears that his house is besieged by callers, and invitations pour in on him in such abundance that he is unable to avail himself of a third of them, and besides his attendance on those which he attempts to comply with has been so fatiguing that he is about to take refuge in a quiet retreat in the Isle of Wight. They say, Mr. DAVIS, is a very pleasant, cheerful, and his income being derived from the profits of a partner ship in a firm at Liverpool."

THE LABOR CONVENTION.

Promises to be an important gathering. Steamboats and railroad trains bring from all sections gentlemen directly interested in the great question of labor, who will go into the Convention determined upon a solution of it that will relieve the country of all anxieties for the future. They come from every part of the South, the South Carolina and Georgia sugar planters, and the Louisiana sugar planters will be prominently represented in this gathering. They are particularly and peculiarly interested in the movement, as indicated are those engaged in the cultivation of cotton. They have suffered more and are suffering more from the indifference and laziness of the negro than any other class of agriculturists in the South. To them, the introduction of Chinese immigrants means a full supply of intelligent laborers, willing workers skilled in the production of the crops to which they are devoted, and release from present intolerable thralldom. Hence their promptness to be among the first in this movement, which is an well advised will result in answering all their anticipations.

THE MEN OF MEMPHIS WHO HAVE THE CONVENTION IN CHARGE.

are full of energy and determined upon favorable results. They know, as we know, that the introduction of European immigrants is too slow to result in the immediate help needed to a rapid recuperation of the South, and they wisely turn to the Pacific coast, where every day all that is desirable in plantation labor is being landed from China and Japan. They are in communication with the six companies of San Francisco, through whom the Chinese are brought to this country, and by whom they are hired; and have invited their agent to be present at the gathering of to-morrow for the purpose of answering all questions, and putting our planters in possession of all the information upon the subject that they may desire.

THIS MOVEMENT HAS THE ENDORSEMENT OF THE GREAT MEN OF THE COUNTRY.

at the North and West and the hearty good-will of leading statesmen who see in it relief for the South and ultimate benefit, great benefit to the whole country. We hope and believe the deliberations of the Convention will conduce to so desirable a result, and that next fall will find an abundance of Chinese labor to assist in gathering the crops now maturing in most promising abundance.
